RECONNECTING TO YOUR BLUEPRINT

Greetings and welcome to you.

I am presented to you in that framework of reference known to you as Star Elder.

In the space from where I address you and where you are linking with, we are not separate. I see a blending of many individuals in the energy field which is termed "Blueprint". All of creation operates in an orderly fashion and it does seem that that order has its own Blueprint, where certain codes, certain energies and light frequencies operate within many parallel levels of existence and synchronised with other levels of existence and unfolding in accordance with particular operating instructions, as you would understand those to be. We will be speaking in terms you would understand. We also will draw you into the experience.

As you know, the experience is that which you respond to and feel in all parts of your systems of livingness.

Allow the energy which comes through with this message to relax you, so be seated or lying comfortably and allow peace to be expressed throughout you., Allow the muscles to relax that hold the bone frame in tension and in stress in many cases. Allow yourself to trust this process, to feel the warmth of the energy deeply within you, knowing that there are parts of you that are disconnected and out of harmony with other parts around you.

For this general message we would have you understand that around you there is not empty space. There is a presence that responds to your thoughts and emotions. It responds to the lovingness or the disorder that you would be expressing and feeling and speaking about internally or externally. What we bring you into here is the phase where you will bring your mind to express all that is of order and happiness and joy, all that you would wish to unfold around you and for you to live in, and to do that we bring you initially into a space of peace and balance where there is no order or disorder, there is no night or day, there is no stress or relaxation. You come into stillness.

From here, rising above you is an energy column. A connection point for you to realise that goes into a sphere which will come into your vision when you reach your point of balance. In the balance point there is an aspect of your consciousness - upper mind level - which opens, and this is where you will visually see or experience in some manner a great sphere of light that extends wider than your body form, greater than your body form.

This is the holographic image of you. This contains the blueprint that will re-establish connections within you and around you.

This is not just a state of restoring you to health. It is restoring the connections that you have to a number of entities and stations throughout known existence, throughout the known universe that you are within and beyond that known universe.

You exist spatially in a specific time experience physically to your usual mind and slow mental processes and understanding. We are wishing you to realise and experience the connections you have well beyond you, where you may perceive yourself as a speck of dust in an expansive field so vast that you cannot see the limit of it, but you may be aware of the pulsations of energy that come in focussed on you.

As you have experienced conditions around you on Earth there have been many such that have blocked your awareness of these greater connections. The greater connections are vital because they relate to every cell and therefore all the codes within the cells, within every part of your body. Countless numbers. These would seem irrelevant at this time to you in terms of referencing a number. Let it sit with you that there are immense numbers of cells that resonate and respond to the impulses of light that create you physically. These are within every organ. These are within every structural element of you and connection elements. They are within hard tissue and soft tissue. They are within the fluids within your body. They encompass you. A creation which made you - in form.

Your focus would be to be fully informed within this light energy frequency, which is the Blueprint referred to.

In realising this blueprint exists for you, now allow this to be expressed fully within you.

This brings you into the present life form and all information you have gathered through your experiences and what others have experienced, and the experience has remained in the level of consciousness surrounding you on Earth.

There are amongst you thousands of beings who have stepped into the wider field of consciousness being aware of the Blueprint and allowing the higher sets of codes to come into you, and these codes release new information for the cells initiating the process to re-establish the wholeness and the pattern of order within you. When you feel that you can comfortably allow this to enter within you and enable this process to work for you, then you have taken the steps of initiating the restoration of your humanness - the humanness designed to coexist with the Blueprint of life - universal life - a strong existing presence and element.

Along with this strengthened body form and consciousness is one that then seeks uniformity of the pattern around you into also reflecting the wholeness of the Blueprint. This is with you from this moment forward in your life pattern.

You may be seeking for a point of reconnection to this Blueprint and element. It will occur naturally but you may perceive it as being receptive through the top of your skull through the top of your head. There are many receiving points in the energy which flows closely around your body form and this must be drawn in and accepted by every part of your body form, so when we say this comes in through your skull it also goes in around you in the energy layers that you would know as your form and your skin and your systems of fluids and nerves.

Be fully connected into the Blueprint for you. This Blueprint enhanced with a higher frequency and codes for extended livingness.

You will also be bringing through creation more suited to the higher energy running through you and how you would wish to present yourself to the world and to exist in a world of harmony and joy and co-creation. The ideas for creation must come up from within you as more information is released within the codes activated within you and through you.

As we present this to you, you may become aware that the stressful elements within your body are changing and shifting into a different position it seems. This will be revealing to you what you have known for some time, that there has needed to be a greater freedom within your body parts and within distinct functions.

You speak about inherited conditions on your Earth plane. What will you be inheriting from this moment forward when you connect into the clear Blueprint, enlivening quite a different set of codes within you, changing ideals, changing conditions.

Exposing yourself into this level of connection brings you into conditions of a greater evolution pattern and we bring this through to you in this time in connecting you to the Blueprint.

In conclusion from this small insight into life we can see the changes occurring within aspects of your energy form.

In your visual experience you may also see that you are connected into various points of light - a system of stars - and this is such as you are.

Bring this into the earth-field.

We acknowledge you in your presence on Earth.

Thank you.

Remember your Connection.
