The state of happiness – the true you The central aspect of creation

Welcome. I am Lani bringing you into this state to enjoy something of your life again – the amazing possibilities - because you bring in the potential of everything that you would want to imagine into your life.

These sessions remind you that you are a quantum being of light. As such, allow your physical body to relax and move into the high evolved light energy – the nonphysical body of you – and then we easily assemble in the Station of Light dimension of existence. It is a beautiful state of existence.

You would be familiar with the energy field here even if this is the first time you have come into a session with us. It is familiar because it is part of the quasmic consciousness field of you.

This is how we begin today and I step back and allow the collective consciousness here to address us.

“Indeed, we come forward and surround you in the energy state and the status that you have drawn yourself into. The status might be that you have allowed yourself to acknowledge the true aspect of you and we refer to the nonphysical presence of you as the true aspect of you.

This aspect connects into the quasmic field of your very essence – the very beginning of your conscious existence – and your consciousness coming into your current physical identity.

This is important for you to realise. When you understand that from the true identification of your quasmic self energy system you are directing, you are influencing and you are infilling the physical identity with the correction processes, if any are needed. You are infilling it with vitality, you are infilling it with the ongoing expansion and the deliverance of the true patterns, the frequency, of existence for you.

In this sense the entirety of you is existing in the central nexus, the central portal of true existence that is creation. It is a creative field.

This is what you are remembering and realizing. This is the importance of you being consciously present in your physical identity physicality self.

Much is delivered in these few words already given to you.

There is automatic self correction, there is automatic correction as you collect the frequency pattern, the pulsations of the patterns of frequency that everyone is receiving in all fields of creation.

Think about this – let the image come into your mind and awareness – that you are the central aspect of creation. it simply ripples out through your consciousness through the connective matrix that surrounds you.

This is important for you to align yourself always to the true central portal of life for you. It is the Nexus, the point of everything, the point of your life existence in your present identification as a physical being.

There is enjoyment in this. There is that state of happiness because you have found the trueness of you – your true identification of your creative self. Creating a beautiful world.

Are you creating a beautiful world within you and around you? How can you create more beauty in this field of potential? This is a question that your true self would present to you as the identity physical self and in a sense it is saying let's create together more beauty in accordance with the true creative design. This is inherent within you, within the perfect original design consciousness that you are.

This is the presentation to you. This is for you to absorb and continue working with it. It will be moving throughout your entire energy field – completely.

This is what you drew into you in this collective gathering.”

Lani speaking again and as I say “Lani speaking”, this is the true pure essence that is life that you have presented to yourself and I have presented to myself in this way, speaking truly to ourselves.

Do you recognize this? Have you allowed yourself to acknowledge this?

It is, in a sense, reforming your entire spectrum that you consider your life to be.

This is what you are now bringing back into the state of your existence that you call your physical life pattern, fully present, identifying yourself within the movement through what we call time and space, presently focused within that.

This is the presentation to you today through Omega Communications.

Your life is a wonderful creation, so continue to create wonderfulness in this life.

Thank you.

Lani
